Illuminating the issue of sexual abuse and exploitation in Christian community.

● PERSONAL STATEMENT

People know me as a bold, compassionate, generous, other-centered people person. I have enjoyed a long, professional career providing strategic marketing communication services for churches, and non-profit organizations. Changing careers to pursue full-time ministry later in life has provided opportunities to share a message of hope and healing in faith-based and secular settings as a biblical counselor and chaplain. As a trainer, author, and speaker specializing in issues surrounding sexual abuse and exploitation, I'm honored to enthusiastically use the pain of my past to help others find comfort and healing and influence transformational change in Christian leadership surrounding these critical issues. I am currently pursuing my Doctorate in Strategic Ministry Leadership at Liberty University to further this calling.

“As a disciple matures in their relationship with Christ, they come to a clearer understanding of their function and purpose within the body of Christ. My spiritual gifts have proven to be that of hospitality to help people feel welcome and comfortable in unfamiliar settings, prophet-a seer and speaker of truth to protect and serve the body, and a teacher who uses compassion and guidance from the Holy Spirit to serve, lead, train, and help others individually and corporately.”
